SOLUM STUDIO

One module. Complete.

I The ground. The floor. The base on which a thing stands.

II The soil itself, and its living layer: the upper ground where roots take hold.

SOLUM STUDIO is the compact expression of the idea. A 3.5 by 10 metre studio, 35 square metres gross, made as a single module with a glass front, a bedroom, a bathroom and a full kitchen. Set lightly on its site. Nothing added for the sake of it. Everything resolved.

Luxury is certainty.

A house is still built the way it was a hundred years ago. On a muddy site, by hand, one at a time. HAAVN BLACK begins from the opposite idea. The home is designed as a product, resolved completely before anything is made, then manufactured in a factory where a millimetre matters and weather does not. What arrives on site is not a frame. It is the home.

01

Resolved, not adjusted

Every junction, service and finish is settled in design. Nothing is decided later with a saw in hand, so nothing drifts.

02

Made under a roof

Modules are built in a controlled factory to tolerances a building site cannot hold, then transported complete.

03

Certain on site

Install is measured in days, not seasons. Less risk, less finance, less of the mess that makes building painful.

“

A home should feel like a deep breath.

I dreamed of a space that speaks simply, that breathes with the land around it and still belongs to the life of the city. HAAVN BLACK is that idea, carried from the first line to the last detail, so the home you walk into is exactly the home that was imagined.

FOUNDER · HAAVN BLACK

Nothing is lost between the drawing and the home.

"Simplicity is the hardest thing to build. We designed SOLUM STUDIO exactly as it is made, to the millimetre, so the home that arrives is the home we drew. It works from the first day, and it never stops feeling like architecture."

Black is a discipline.

A dark, quiet envelope with warmth held inside. The palette is deliberately short: fewer materials, better ones, detailed properly. Four facades, four tiles and two timber schemes, and every one of them works with the others.

What arrives.

SOLUM STUDIO is manufactured whole as one module and delivered complete. What follows is the studio as designed. Everything here is standard. There is no base specification, no upgrade list and no high grade option, because the high grade is what we build.

FACADE	Four finishes: Yakisugi black timber, Blackbutt timber, Black metal or Light concrete. Black windows and trims throughout.

KITCHEN	A full kitchen with a silver drum hood over the cooktop. Mosaic tile splashback in your choice of colour.
APPLIANCES	A premium appliance package, included as standard. Induction cooktop, oven, integrated dishwasher, integrated refrigeration, rangehood, and a washing machine and dryer.

BATHROOM	Shower with a framed screen. Mosaic tile to the shower walls and the vanity.
ENERGY	Rooftop solar and battery storage, with inverter and monitoring, included as standard. The home carries its own power.

INTERIOR PALETTE	Four tile colours, Sage, Tide, Burgundy and Vine, with two timber schemes, Eveneer Raw Walnut or Charcoal Oak, coordinated across the ceiling planks and the fixed joinery.

Renders are image studies and are not dimensionally exact to the architectural model. The exterior views show the burgundy interior. Furniture, landscaping and styling are shown for illustration and are not included. Material colour changes with light, so finishes are specified from physical samples. Final specification is confirmed at contract. Design by Fraser & Partners for HAAVN.
